Patent Medicines.

LEXINGTON, KY., February 8, 1882

Ed. Bulletin: In your paper we notice an article upon the above subject, criticising a note of ours recently published in the Apostolic Times, which requires some notice at our hands. It was evidently the intention of the writer to distort our note to suit certain purposes.

He says he is now satisfied that the "promiscuous use of patent medicines is hurtful," so are we. He says we sanction such use. Here he perverts our meaning. He says "the Times is the first religious paper as far as he knows, to endorse patent medicines," wrong impression again. He knows religious papers and the clergy too, are continually endorsing them. How many of our ministers have failed to endorse Dobyns sure cure, for instance. He says, the "Times has become the advocate of their nostrums." Distortion, and the writer knows it. We have told the readers of the Times, time and again that we only endorse such advertisement as we say we do editorially and that whenever we detect an imposition in our paper we will instantly throw it out. Recently, we threw out two advertisements of consumption cure on this account, which are published regularly in many leading religious papers, all over the land; but be it understood, if a patent medicine is good we will endorse it if it need be. If it is a fraud we will expose it if need be. We shall not hesitate to endorse the good or expose the bad, no matter whether we find it among patent medicine or the doctors. He says we endorsed Flagg's instant relief and Day's kidney pad, editorially. This is a gross misrepresentation. The most we said was "that we do not advertise any patent medicine in the Times but those we have good reason to believe possess merit." When we endorse them the readers of the Times will not have to hunt behind a bushel to find it. They know that. He says the "bar rooms are not responsible for all the drunkards that people the land." That is quite true. The doctors come in for a very large share. He says it is a well known fact that patent medicines contain arsenic. It is also a well known fact that doctors give arsenic. And it is a well known fact that doctors write their prescriptions in latin words and no one but the druggist can understand them. The "poor patient" has to go it blind, it is a matter of faith alone.

Finally, he says, "it is known to the medicine world that these medicines are nothing but quack medicines, having no virtue in them as medicines." He knows very well that this will not hold good among sensible people, not even with physicians.

Finally, we say, the writer would have the people exercise more faith in doctors. This is the burden of his entire article. We have learned from sad experience that it is safest to think and act independently for oneself. We do not believe anything without evidence, and the sooner the people learn to proceed on this basis the better it will be for them. Doctors are not perfect, neither are patent medicines. Medical science is a speculative one at best.

B. H. COZINE,
Managing Editor Times.

"I'm not very proud of your progress in school," remarked a mother to her son, who was struggling along in grade five. "There's Charlie Smart is way ahead of you, and he isn't as old." "I know it. Teacher said he'd learned all there was to learn in my room, and that left me without anything to learn."

At Fort Wayne, Ind., a family of five persons suffer from trichinosis, caused by eating raw snaked pork. It is thought the three children cannot possibly survive.

At Cleveland, O., Henry Bittle was attacked by foot-pads, and robbed of a considerable amount of money.

Dr. L. W. Thompson, a prominent physician of Gallipolis, has been killed by an embankment falling on him.

L'Enfant Terrible.

It was in the cars. The ladies were sitting together, busily engaged in conversation. On the seat facing them sat a little-five-year-old boy. He had been looking out at the window, apparently absorbed in contemplation of the moving panorama of the outside world. Suddenly he turned from the window; he began searching about the car, exclaiming in a high, piping voice:

"Mamma, which man is it that looks so funny?"

"Sh!" cautioned his mother. But the boy wasn't to be hushed.

"I don't see the man with the bald head, mamma, and the funny red nose."

The "sh" was repeated. By this time the car was in a titter, save and excepting one elderly man with a bald head and a very red nose. His eyes were riveted upon his paper with a fixedness that was quite frightful. Again the boy:

"Oh! now I see him! He! what a bright nose! What makes it so red, mamma?"

"Georgie!" shouted his mother in a stage whisper.

But Georgie was not to be stopped.

"Mamma," he continued, "what made you say he had a light house on his face? I don't see no light house."

Again "Georgie!" and this time with a slight shake. Once more the piping voice, the bald headed passenger gazing at his paper more fiercely than ever and growing redder every moment.

"Mamma, I don't his head looks like the state house dome. It's shiny like it, but it isn't so yeller."

While the titter went round again, Georgie's mother whispered rapidly to the boy, and gave her hopeful a box on each ear, which seemed to partially divert his attention from the bald headed passenger, but not entirely. He cried once more, through his tears:

"You said his nose was as red as a beet, mamma; I didn't say nothing!"

Strange to say, the bald headed passenger didn't take part in the suppressed laughter that followed; but he put on his hat, and hid his nose in his paper, over which he glared at the boy as though he wanted to eat him. And yet wherein was the boy to blame?—Boston Transcript.

The Head-Liner.

The professors of journalism, who periodically tell us about newspapers, have failed to notice a comparatively modern and a very important feature of the newspaper which has stealthily conquered for itself an influence which even newspaper managers sometimes inadequately recognize. It often happens that the ingenious artist in this department is really editing the paper. He can convey an impression which the writers of ponderous leaders are endeavoring to avoid. He can create a doubt or awaken a suspicion by a single artfully-chosen word, or sow broadcast an opinion which it may take columns of writing to show is unfounded. Suggestions that are buried in the bodies of articles may attract no notice; but the flaming headline takes the eye at once, and its diagnosis of the matter which it criticizes may be very wide of the mark without the average reader applying any corrective. The head-line largely regulates the emphasis that is given to the report of current events. Small matters in this way may be magnified, and mere conjectures invested with nearly the dignity of established facts.—Toronto Mail.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

FRIDAY EVENING, FEB. 10, 1882.

WASHINGTON Territory is now asking admission into the Union as a State.

The Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, has reported a bill authorizing the construction at Frankfort of a substantial and commodious building with fire-proof vaults for the use of the Federal Courts, the Postoffice, Internal Revenue and other government offices located there. The structure is to cost not to exceed the sum of $160,000.

If the persons who use profane language on the public streets in this country were fined for each offense, according to law, there would soon be a sufficient sum realized from this source to pay off the national debt. If only a quarter of a cent fine for every oath uttered was imposed, there are men in this town who would have to pay about five dollars a day.

The intrigues of cabinet ministers to secure the Presidency are at last beginning to attract the attention of congress. Mr. Berry, a democratic representative from California, has introduced a bill in the house making a cabinet officer ineligible to the presidency for the term next succeeding his term of office. On this subject the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun takes occasion to remark that there has never been a period since the formation of the government that members of the cabinet were not employed in laying wires to succeed their chief and in undermining each other. Several of the Presidents have enjoyed the felicity of having cabinets nearly all of whose members were in this occupation, causing discords, heartburnings and distrusts instead of the harmony which ought to prevail in cabinet councils. But down to the time of Mr. Sherman as secretary of the treasury no cabinet officer had ever so openly used the patronage of his department to advance his Presidential ambition and down to the time of Mr. Blaine no Secretary of state had deliberately resolved to needlessly plunge his country into war to gratify his ambition in the same direction. These two striking and glaring instances are fresh before congress and before the country, and the example set by these two presidential candidates may, if no obstacle is interposed, have bolder imitators in cabinet officers of the future, entailing most serious and momentous consequences.

How to Prevent the Defacing Marks of Small-Pox.

While it is known that a total suppression of small-pox will endanger the life of the sufferer it is proved by experience, that it can be undertaken on small portions of the body for instance the face without harm—a pomade made of six parts of pitch, (piz nigra) ten parts of yellow wax, and twenty-four parts of mercurial ointment, will answer the purpose. When used, it should be warmed and all parts of the skin of the face be covered, and kept covered, continually, for the space of four days; the salve, if it proves efficacious, must be applied on the first or second day the eruption has broken out. Four days after the application, when removed, the eruption will have remained populose, and the spots will disappear in time, without leaving any marks behind.

French physicians are now using gutta percha, dissolved in chloroform, in the same way, which is more simple and answers every purpose.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head, tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. AT Milford, Bracken, on the 8th inst., James Walton was shot by Wash Moran and severely, if not fatally, wounded. The two men had had a previous difficulty, when Walton shot at Moran, but missed his mark. The men went to Milford together and with several others got to drinking and were not long in getting into a difficulty over the former grudge. Words and blows were freely exchanged, when Moran drew a pistol and ended the melee by shooting Walton in the neck. It is believed Walton will die.

THE vicinity of Petra, Bracken county is wild with excitement over an alleged attempt at rape. The story runs as follows: John Dunn, aged sixteen years, attempted a rape on the person of a Mrs. King, a young married lady and a cousin of Dunn's. Dunn's father and Mr. King lived near each other, and Mrs. King had gone to Mr. Dunn's for milk, and just before she left for her home John Dunn walked out and pretended to be on the hunt of a horse, and when Mrs. King had got a short distance from Mr. Dunn's, young Dunn made the attack, but was unsuccessful in his hellish design. He was promptly arrested, taken before a magistrate, tried and convicted.

The New Jail.

The county court will have no grounds now of excuse, for not making immediate arrangements for the erection of a suitable jail house and jailer's residence, in compliance with the rule of the circuit court, requiring that to be done. The legislature has clothed the county court of Mason county, with ample power to dispose of the old premises, procure a new site, and to levy a sufficient tax to pay all necessary expenses.

Mason county has a large population, is wealthy, and ought to have a first-class county prison, built in the most substantial manner, and commodious enough to answer all the public wants for fifty years to come. We hope the judge and justices of the county, will see the matter in this light, and build an edifice for prison purposes, with such modern improvements and conveniences, as experience has shown to be promotive of the health, comfort, safety and reformation of the inmates.

The eminent prison architects and engineers of Louisville, Messrs. H. P. McDonald & Co., have recently designed and erected many jail buildings in Kentucky, which are spoken of in the highest terms by all who have seen them. They were employed to make the plans and designs of the penitentiary, which they executed in the very best style and to the satisfaction of all who have seen them. These experienced men might with advantage be consulted about the plans of the new jail, and we hope the judge of the county court place himself in correspondence with them, and, if to the interest of the county, procure their services in the preparation of the plans and estimates of the work.

The old jail was built in an emergency, at a time when the removal of the county seat was agitating the public mind. No architect was consulted, but the edifice was very hastily erected, and, of course, in a most imperfect manner. We believe it was built by the city and tendered as the inducement for a removal of the county seat to Maysville. The new jail will be built under very different circumstances, and the public authorities should see that nothing is omitted to make it complete in all respects, and worthy of the age in which we live.

Advice to Those Using Glasses.

Men engaged in literary pursuits should read most by day and write most by night. It is worthy of note that reading causes more strain to the eye than writing, and that copying work in writing makes a greater demand upon the organ of vision than off-hand composition. Twilight and a mixture of twilight and artificial illumination should be avoided for any kind of work. The pale cobalt-blue tint is the best that can be employed when protection for the eye from intense glare is sought, as in the case of traveling upon snow-fields in the bright sunshine. The green glass that is so often adopted for this purpose is not by any means so worthy of confidence. Reading in railway traveling is objectionable in the highest degree for a very obvious reason. The oscillation of the carriage continually alters the distance of the page from the eye, and so calls for unceasing strain in the effort to keep the organ in due accommodation for the ever-varying distance of the dancing image. The exact fitting of the frame of spectacles to the face and eyes is of more importance than is generally conceived. If the centers of the lenses of the spectacles do not exactly coincide with the centers of the pupils of the eyes, the consequence is that the images in the separate eyes are a little displaced from the positions which they ought to hold, and that a somewhat painful and injurious effort has to be made by the eye to bring those images back into due correspondence for accurate vision. An incipient squint is apt to be in this way produced. Mr. Carter recommends that people should look to the centering of their spectacles for themselves. This may be easily done by standing before a looking-glass with the spectacles in their place. If the fit is a good one the center of the pupil should then appear in the center of the rim. Fully-formed spectacles are always to be preferred to folding frames, because they permit of more satisfactory adjustment in this particular, and because they are more easily kept in the right position with regard to the eyes. The only advantage which the pebble enjoys over glass for the construction of spectacles is the immunity which it possesses against scratching and fracture on account of its greater hardness.—Edinburg Review.

A young man, pale and visibly agitated, hurriedly entered a drug-store, late at night, and, accosting the clerk, said: "Give me an ounce of chlorate of potash, will you, as quick as you can?" Observing his perturbation the clerk ventured to ask: "What's your hurry?" "Why, I've been kissing our Sunday-school teacher since 9 o'clock, and she didn't tell me till ten minutes ago that she was afraid she had the diphtheria."

A Primitive Tribe.

Dr. Hunter describes a peculiar tribe in India, which has preserved an extreme primitiveness. The people are called Leaf Wearers, because they wear the costume of Adam and Eve before the fall; or, more strictly speaking, they did so until the English persuaded them to adopt cloth. In 1871 the English officer called together the clan, and, after a speech, handed out strips of cotton for the women to put on. They then passed in single file to the number of one thousand nine hundred before him, made obeisance to him, and were afterward marked on the forehead with vermilion as a sign of their entering into civilized society. Finally they gathered the bunches of leaves which had formed their sole clothing into a great heap, and solemnly set fire to it. This leaf-wearing tribe had no knowledge of the metals till quite lately, when foreigners came among them, and no word existed in their native language for iron or any other metal. But their country abounds in flint weapons, so that the Juangs form a remnant to our own day of the stone age.

"Their huts," writes the officer who knows them best, "are among the smallest that human beings ever deliberately constructed as dwellings. They measure about six feet by eight feet. The head of the family and all the females huddle together in this one shell, not much larger than a dog kennel." The boys and the young men of the village live in one large building apart by themselves and this custom of having a common abode for the whole male youth of the hamlet is found among many aboriginal tribes in distant parts of India.

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers and Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candied, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.
